

Local Important Farmland
for
Town of Meriden, Connecticut

The Town of Meriden, Connecticut, has concern for certain additional farmlands for production of food, feed, fiber, and forage, even though these lands are not identified as having national or statewide importance. According to the Code of Federal Regulations, title 7 part 657, these lands have been identified by the local agency concerned as Local Important Farmland and approved by the signatories below.

Local Important Farmland – Meriden

Map Symbol	Soil Name
41B	Ludlow silt loam, 2 to 8 percent slopes, very stony 70C	Branford-Holyoke complex, 3 to 15 percent slopes, very rocky 77C	Cheshire-Holyoke complex, 3 to 15 percent slopes, very rocky 88D	Wetherfield loam, 3 to 8 percent slopes, very stony